Your tasks

- Your top priority is snag-free operation. That is why you live and breathe efficient administration, monitoring and maintenance of our MySQL DB servers.
- You get your kicks from the designing and modelling of new database infrastructures as part of system development.
- Trust is great – control is better. That is why monitoring is your top priority and you are bursting with ideas for improvements.
- You create reports with one objective in mind: daily improvements and continuous optimisation of the reporting system.
- Knowhow transfer is a matter of course for you and you support your colleagues from DEV and OPS in every way you can. You are looking for an opportunity, where you can push your personal development in the right direction.

What we expect

- You love optimisation and enjoy learning about new systems and processes. You have plenty of your own ideas and need somewhere, where they will be appreciated.
- Working on command line level is your thing and you are well versed with Open Source and Linux is like an old friend to you.
- You feel right at home in SQL and relational database systems and have had some experience with TCP/IP networks and programming.
- You are fully aware of the fact that analytical thinking and structured, team-oriented work ethics are the key to success in your chosen career. That is why these are your strengths - as is the knowledge that you must never lose focus of your goals.
